Council to vote on LRT tomorrow

► Seasoned public delegate doubts speakers will sway votes, prompt change

City Council is set to vote on the $2.1-billion light rail plan tomorrow, but before it does, members of the public will have the chance to have their say.

At least eight people are signed up to speak to council, including David Jeanes. Jeanes, president of Transport Action Canada, has spoken before the council as a whole and to council committees "200 to 300 times" over the last 14 years — but he doesn't think what people say tomorrow will change any councillors' minds or the LRT plan. "People can have their say and they'll be heard. It's just that I don't think much change will come," said Jeanes.

Councillors will have already considered staff reports and likely made up their minds, said Jeanes. However, he still believes it's important councillors listen.

"The mayor looks forward to the input and ideas from residents about how we can move forward with light rail and improve transit in Ottawa."

BRUCE GRAHAM, PRESS SECRETARY FOR
OTTAWA MAYOR JIM WATSON

"This is a pretty fundamental decision that they're making and it will have an impact on the public," said Jeanes.

Mayor Jim Watson said Thursday he's looking forward to input and that previous consultations unearthed dissatisfaction with the depth of the downtown stations — a problem that he said will be fixed if the new plan is approved.

The Buck stops here at Bluesfest

Eclectic, quirky Canadian hipster-geek hip-hop artist Buck 65 went head to head with classic rock legend John Fogerty last night at the Ottawa Bluesfest. Buck 65 hit the Hard Rock Café stage while the older rocker was at the main stage. The younger crowd had a blast as the Nova Scotia native and CBC host gave it his all and even sampled a bit of Creedence Clearwater Revival. # Local student prepares for math competition

► Canadian math team hoping to beat last year's 13th-place finish out of 96 ► James Rickards currently training in Banff, Alta., for event

► Colonel By Secondary School student James Rickards in Banff, Alta., where he is training with other members of the Canadian International Math Olympiad team.

JESSICA SMITH
@METRONEWS.CA

James Rickards has a lot of problems these days — practice math problems, that is.

"They're problems that can be solved using high school math only, but they're beyond the normal level," said Rickards, a student at Colonel By Secondary School. Rickards spoke to Metro on the phone from the Banff International Research Centre, where he has spent the last week training for the International Math Olympiad.

"You use tips and tricks that you normally don't learn in high school. That makes them a lot harder."

The problems he and other high school students from around the world will try to solve at the International competition in Amsterdam on July 18 to 19 require ingenuity, creativity and several hours to solve.

"The main competition is two days long, and each day there's a three-question test and you have four and a half hours — so you have six questions and nine hours," said Rickards. "Each one gets a mark from zero to seven, and you calculate your sum and that's your total score."

Each country can send teams of six.

"We like to add together everyone's score from each country and see which country is the best," added Rickards.

Rickards was chosen for the team by scoring well in qualifying math contests. He's been doing math competitively since Grade 8 and plans to study math in university, but doesn't know where it will lead him. In the meantime, he said he'll enjoy the trip to Amsterdam and doing math when he gets there.

"I find it fun and it's a challenge," he said.

City cancels regional lifeguard competition

Ottawa has cancelled its regional lifeguard competition slated for July 14-15 due to insufficient interest from lifeguard teams.

Despite the cancellation, the city will still officially launch Drowning Prevention Week at Genest Outdoor Pool at 43 Ste-Cécile St. on Saturday, July 16 at 1 p.m. with a variety of activities and lifeguard demonstrations, including life-jacket fittings and water-survival skills, along with some games for children. In case of rain the event will be held at the St-Laurent Complex at 525 Côte St. ● METRO

A search is currently being conducted in the area. Anyone with information about the vehicle occupant or who witnessed anything is asked to contact the Ottawa Police at 613-236-1222 ext. 2912 or Crime Stoppers at 613-233-8477 (TIPS) or toll free at 1-800-222-8477. ● METRO

An Important Notice for Adult Ontarians Living with Diabetes

Living with diabetes is not easy, but managing it day-to-day really means taking good care of yourself.

There are three key tests that people living with diabetes should receive on a regular basis. They are:

- the HbA1C blood glucose control test, which patients should receive at least every six months
- the LDL-C cholesterol test, which patients should receive every year
- a retinal eye exam, which patients should receive every two years

The Diabetes Testing Report was created to help inform your primary care provider (physician or nurse practitioner in a Nurse Practitioner-Led Clinic) of when you last had each of these three tests.

People living with diabetes who are tested regularly are better able to manage their diabetes and avoid complications. The Diabetes Testing Report will help you and your primary care provider better manage your diabetes care by reminding him or her if you are overdue for an HbA1C test, LDL-C test or retinal eye exam, and it will encourage you and your primary care provider to talk about your diabetes care.

Protecting Your Privacy

In order to create the Diabetes Testing Report, your primary care provider may share personal health information, including your name, OHIP number, and date of birth, with the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care (MOHLTC). He or she will also confirm whether you have diabetes. In response, the MOHLTC will share the most recent dates of each of the three tests with your provider. Your privacy is important, and you are not required to have your information included in this report.

Deciding Not to Share Your Information

You may decide that you do not want your primary care provider to disclose your information to the MOHLTC, and that you do not wish to be included in your provider's Diabetes Testing Reports. If you choose to withhold or withdraw your consent, this will in no way affect your relationship with your health care provider and he or she will continue to provide care to you.

If you wish to withhold or withdraw your consent to having your information disclosed by your primary care provider and in any Diabetes Testing Reports that MOHLTC sends to your primary care provider, call 1-800-291-1405 (TTY: 1-800-387-5559). If you have previously withheld or withdrawn your consent to have your information included on the Diabetes Testing Report, you do not need to withhold or withdraw your consent again. If you wish to reinstate your consent, you can do so by calling the number above.

In Ontario, the Personal Health Information Protection Act, 2004 (PHIPA) is the legislation that governs the collection, use, retention, and disclosure of personal health information by health information custodians, including MOHLTC and primary care providers. For more information about the collection, use, and disclosure of your personal health information for the purposes of the Diabetes Testing Report, call the numbers listed above. For more information about diabetes, visit ontario.ca/diabetes.

► Bob Brown and Catherine Gardener pose in front of an old bus being retired because it isn't wheelchair accessible. Both members of the city's accessibility advisory committee say the new low-floor bus fleet will also benefit seniors and parents with strollers.

Ottawa retires last of city's inaccessible buses

Taking transit around Ottawa was always a little bit of a gamble for Bob Brown because he'd never know if the next bus would pick him up or pass him by, possibly making him miss a connection or arrive late at an appointment.

“Now it's not a worry,” said Brown. “I know I'll be able to get on.”

City officials announced yesterday they've retired the last of the high-floor buses, which were inaccessible for people who use wheelchairs or other mobility aids.

Brown, who is quadriplegic, can now use 100 per cent of the city's fleet as long as the bus isn't completely full or the wheelchair spaces aren't already taken, he said.

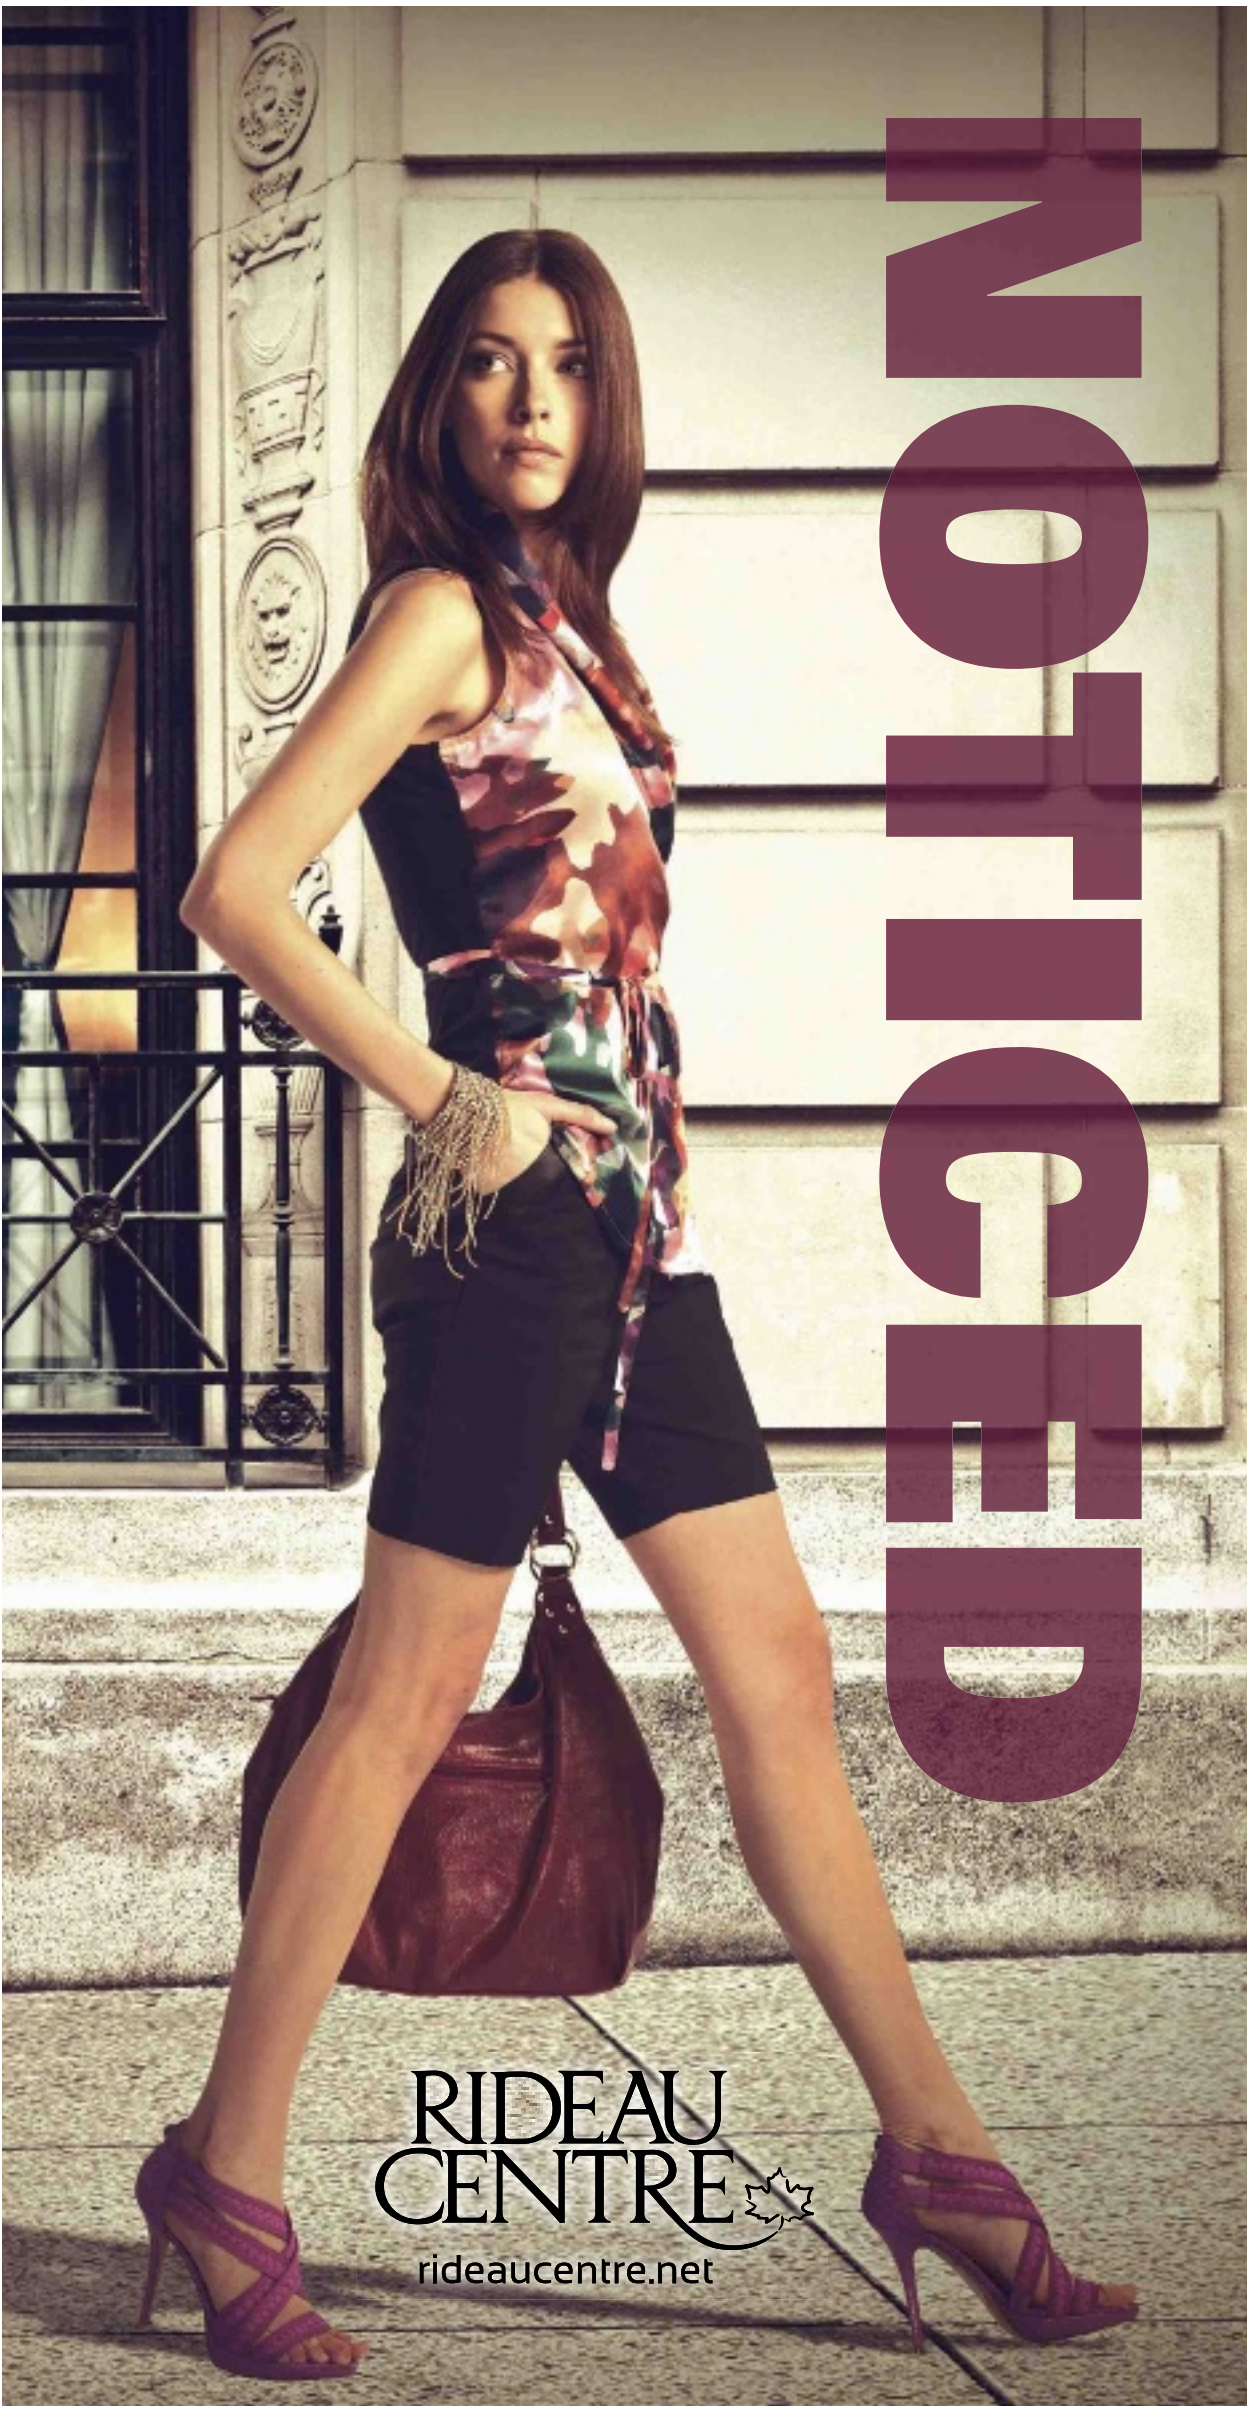

“Rush hour is still a concern,” he said.

Brown and Catherine Gardener, who work with the city on accessibility issues through an advisory committee, both said the retirement of the inaccessible buses is good news worth celebrating.

Both said they still have concerns about the design of the city's new double-decker buses, but will continue to work with the city on the issue.

Do you think Twitter should be monitored, policed and restricted?

Dave Stibrany

There's such a fine line between free speech and what you can say. It's hard to monitor it, but I definitely think that something should be done with this problem.

Of course. But who's actually going to monitor it? Everyone's going to use the whole free-speech amendment.

I don't think it should be monitored. People are going to think whatever they want to whether or not you let them say it on Twitter.

Maybe we're going to say that everyone should have their free opinion or whatever, but I don't know — people can be very cruel.

Lessons from celeb tweets gone wrong

A word of caution to Twitter users, celebrity or otherwise: Be careful not to show too much Weiner. As one United States congressman found out the hard way, nothing sent online is ever private. Here are some celebrity tweets gone wrong:

Anthony Weiner:

U.S. Representative Anthony Weiner resigned as a result of inappropriate messages and photos he sent to women on Twitter and Facebook. Most famous is a tweet of his boxer-clad genitals he sent to a 21-year-old woman.

Ryan Seacrest:

The former American Idol host tweeted contestant Lacey Brown's elimination on American Idol 17 minutes before the show aired.

"Packed radio show tomorrow ... got tonight's voted-off idol Lacey Brown, @orianthi, @thedavidcook, & dakota fanning with deets on

▶ Anthony Weiner

▶ Courtney Love

'Eclipse.'"

Kenneth Cole:

The world-famous designer had to apologize after comments he made about the uprising in Egypt, resulting in outrage from the Twitter community.

"Millions are in uproar in #Cairo. Rumor is they heard our new spring collection is now available online at <http://bit.ly/KCairo> -KC" Courtney Love:

The singer's tweets about designer Dawn Simorangkir cost her $430,000 in a libel lawsuit. She called the designer a "vile horrible lying bitch," as well as cocaine dealer, embezzler, racist and homophobe, and even threatened her life.

Mob mentality yielding mean tweets on negative stereotypes

▶ #fatpeoplenightmares was trending topic across Canada and the U.S. for nearly 31 hours last week

MARIANA IONOVA
WINNIPEG@METRONEWS.CA

When Twitter goes from fun, games and Bieber love to mean trending topics, it becomes a form of bullying, an expert says.

"When you look at taunting and teasing within Twitter ... that type of bullying can drive a person to some serious depths of despair," said Tim Richardson, social media expert and e-commerce professor at the University of Toronto.

Trending topics like #whatmakesablackgirlmad illustrate how Twitter can become a platform for negative stereotyping and cyber-bullying, said Richardson.

Last week, Twitter showed its mean streak again when users began posting hundreds of tweets suggesting overweight people fear exercise, lettuce and the middle seat on flights.

"At the moment, you really don't think how it could affect someone. You just respond to it to make other people laugh."

MARITZA SANCHEZ, 21

"People were saying these things that are so hurtful that they would never have the guts to say in person," said Sam Tremblay, 22, who tweeted to criticize the #fatpeoplenightmares hash tag.

Richardson said many Twitter users do not think twice before tweeting because they can hide behind the anonymity of the Internet.

"The thing with Twitter is that people are distanced from the pain that they're causing other people, and so they will do these things more easily," Richardson said.

Maritza Sanchez, 21,

▶ Tim Richardson, e-commerce professor at U of T, has examined the effects of group dynamics in trending-topic discussions that encourage users to tweet comments that reinforce negative stereotypes.

tweeted that overweight people are afraid their cake will come to life and run away. Sanchez said she knows it wasn't right but she didn't consider how others would feel at the time.

But one Torontonians, who tweets as @Kanadian_Kid, said users should lighten up because Twitter is not a serious platform. Another user, @guyanese-mon, equated the tweets to standup comedy.

Watch your social media activities during job search

Your job application was turned down even though you have the education, skills and experience the company is looking for. Reason? Check your Facebook and Twitter posts.

Some employers say they base about half of their hiring decisions on applicants' social media activities.

"What intrigues me enough to contact that person is what they have online, what they have done in the past," said Sam Manna, director of client development and talent acquisition at Argentus Search Group.

"If the person doesn't have a filter, if they don't understand the line between what should be said and what shouldn't be, then it's kind of hard for us to put our name on that person and say that's the best that we have."

Facebook, Time Warner gang up on bullies

Facebook and Time Warner are ganging up on bullies to address a problem that torments millions of children and young adults.

The partnership announced yesterday calls for Facebook and Time Warner to use their clout to raise awareness about bullying and encourage more people to report the abuses when they see them. Facebook's participation reflects a growing recognition that its online social network consisting of more than 750 million people has become an outlet for harassment as well as friendship.

"We believe that by working together with parents and teachers, we can teach young people to speak up and stop bullying," said Sheryl Sandberg, Facebook's chief operating officer.

The anti-bullying campaign will be waged on the Internet, on TV and radio and several major U.S. magazines. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CIA infiltrated Abbottabad: Report

► Pakistani officials arrest doctor who helped run fake medical program designed to obtain bin Laden DNA

The CIA ran a phoney vaccination program in the Pakistani town where Osama bin Laden's family was believed to be living in an effort to obtain DNA evidence indicating whether the al-Qaida leader was there, the New York Times reported.

An American official said the Pakistani doctor who ran the program in Abbottabad gained temporary access to the bin Laden compound but never saw bin Laden himself and failed to obtain DNA samples from bin Laden family members, the Times reported on Monday.

A team of Navy SEALs killed bin Laden during a raid in May. U.S. officials have said they were not certain bin Laden was in the compound in Abbottabad when President Barack Obama gave the go-ahead for the operation.

Dr. Shakil Afridi, who ran the vaccination program, has been arrested and held in Pakistani custody because of his suspected collaboration with the U.S., the Times reported.

The CIA declined to comment on the Times report when contacted by The Associated Press. The vaccination program was first reported by the Guardian newspaper of London.

The bin Laden raid was kept secret from Pakistani officials, which has strained U.S.-Pakistan relations. Bin Laden's ability to live for years in Abbottabad, where Pakistan's main military academy is located, has led to speculation in the U.S. that some elements of the Pakistani government knew of his whereabouts.

NASA 'nauts take final spacewalk

► Robots to eventually assume duty of refuelling satellites that orbit as high as 38,886 kilometres

Astronauts making the last spacewalk of NASA's space-shuttle era yesterday retrieved a broken pump from the International Space Station and installed a fill-up experiment for a robot.

In a departure from previous shuttle visits, the spacewalking job fell to space-station astronauts Michael Fossum and Ronald Garan Jr.. They completed the two major chores inside of 3½ hours.

The ammonia coolant pump stopped working last July and, for more than two weeks, left the space station with only half its cooling capability. Space-station residents had to perform three emergency spacewalks last summer to replace the pump and restore full cooling to all the on-board equipment.

NASA wants the pump brought back to Earth so engineers can figure out why it failed to help them keep the on-board station pumps running.

But perhaps more than anything else on this final journey by a shuttle, the robotic demo illustrates the possibilities ahead for NASA: satellite-refuelling stations in space run by robots.

The space station's two-armed robot Dextre won't tackle the $22.6-million playset until long after Atlantis departs and the shuttle program ends.

The station is intended to operate until at least 2020.

Bad news week

- The rapid erosion of Rupert Murdoch's political influence is raising speculation that he could close his U.K. newspapers to avoid more legal problems and boost his hopes of seizing control of BSkyB.
- But some observers think the idea of a U.K. newspaper shutdown is absurd. "It's completely bonkers," said Claire Enders of Enders Analysis. "They just invested $1 billion in new presses. They have revenues of 1 billion pounds a year and around 50 million pounds profit."

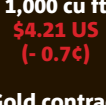

The cozy relationship that Rupert Murdoch long enjoyed with the British political establishment came to an abrupt end yesterday, just as he needed it to complete one of his biggest media buys ever.

The billionaire, tainted by a cellphone hacking scandal at one of his newspapers, suddenly faces stiff government opposition to his bid for total control of a much more lucrative property: the satellite British Sky Broadcasting company.

The news came in a stunning announcement from Prime Minister David Cameron that the government will support an opposition motion calling on Murdoch and his News Corp. to withdraw the $12-billion US bid for BSkyB.

Cameron took action after his predecessor, Gordon Brown, gave an emotional televised interview yesterday saying that Murdoch journalists had illegally obtained his confidential bank accounts, tax records and even health information about his son, who suffers from cystic fibrosis.

News International did not comment on the government's decision yesterday. Murdoch, his son James and News International chief Rebekah Brooks have been asked to appear before British lawmakers to answer questions about the hacking charges. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RIM future secure with new smartphones: CEOs

Research In Motion faces challenges as it moves toward the release of a new operating system, but the company is strong and on the verge of its biggest product launch ever, Jim Balsillie, RIM's co-chief executive, told shareholders yesterday at the company's packed annual meeting in Waterloo, Ont.

There were no signs of serious discontent among shareholders, despite a recent spate of criticism and a serious drop in RIM's stock price. In fact, Balsillie and co-CEO Mike Lazaridis were welcomed with applause from what appeared to be a partisan crowd, and their comments were received warmly.

Balsillie and Lazaridis highlighted plans to launch seven new BlackBerry smartphones running its new operating system, which they insisted would help the new BlackBerry Bold jump a generation in technology and secure the company's future success. RIM's management structure has come under criticism as Balsillie and Lazaridis currently serve as both co-CEOs and co-chairmen of the company. Some say the roles should be divided. THE CANADIAN PRESS

A CHANCE TO EMPOWER CHILDREN

NEIL MORTON
METRO

My youngest daughter, Chloe, has been bugging me for years to coach her house-league soccer team. I remember how cool it was when my dad coached me at soccer as a kid, so I finally stepped up this spring and volunteered, having no real idea of what the heck I was getting myself into — or the learning curve involved.

One of my biggest fears, other than the time involved, was this: You take an ultra-competitive guy who played all-star soccer growing up and put him in charge of a bunch of nine-year-old girls at different skill levels and you just don't know what you're going to get.

My wife has been like, "Well, you're not here to teach them how to win; you're here to let them have fun, exercise, develop some skills." But I'm like, "I know it's house league, but, well, I just hate losing. At anything. Period. How can I just turn off my competitive nature? Let's bend it like Beckham!"

Somehow, I have tried to repress that competitive side.

"The long and the short is this: To the thousands of dads and moms across Canada who volunteer their time each week coaching teams — I'm starting to get it now. You guys are awesome. See you at indoor soccer."

I do my best to be fair with all the girls. I divvy up playing time and allow them to try different positions and develop at their own pace. If a more skilled forward scores a goal, I will (while biting my tongue) sometimes move them back to midfield or defence or sub them out just to prove it's not all about winning.

I have also learned to navigate other coaching duties: What parents bring snacks each week, huge storms that blow in out of nowhere where you have to yell at the teenage referee "Stop the game early! Pull the kids off the field!" and the delicate balance of coaching your daughter and not playing favouritism.

The ultimate goal about coaching at this level, I'm learning, is to empower these girls. To encourage and instil confidence in them at this vital life stage while also just letting them have fun. If we happen to win the game, too, that's gravy. (That said, if we're up 2-1 with minutes to go, I might put my best defenders back there, but shhhhh.)

My daughter loves that daddy is the coach. And daddy pretty much loves doing it, though there are moments after a long work day where he would rather just kick back than gather all the soccer balls and game sheets and water bottles and drive to a soccer field to coach on a sweltering summer evening.

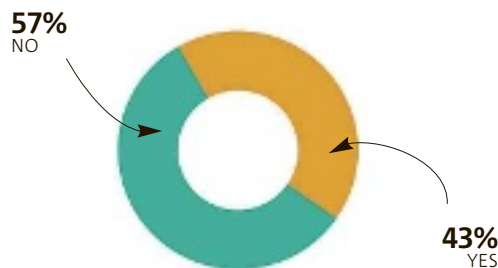

The long and the short is this: To the thousands of dads and moms across Canada who volunteer their time each week coaching teams — I'm starting to get it now. You guys are awesome. See you at indoor soccer.

Worth mentioning

Schools and hospitals were designated by the UN Security Council yesterday as safe havens for children threatened by war.

Led by visiting German Foreign Minister Guido Westerwelle, the council voted unanimously yesterday to have the UN chief "name and shame" national security forces and other armed groups that target schools and hospitals in conflicts, often killing, maiming or sexually violating children. The resolution, spearheaded by Germany, also called on all countries to take action to help stop the growing practice.

"Because children are very often the first victims of violence and conflict, we must do what we can to protect them," Westerwelle said.

Jo Becker, advocacy director for children's rights at Human Rights Watch, said a UN blacklist of groups responsible for school and hospital attacks could have "a real impact."

"What this does is puts them on notice," Becker said. "It stigmatizes them."

Honey spill creates quite the buzz

Cleanup crews in Island Park, Idaho, found themselves in a sticky situation after clearing honey and an estimated 14 million bees that got loose after a delivery truck overturned on a highway.

Fremont County Sheriff deputies say several workers were stung during the first few hours of the cleanup Sunday.

And some observers told The Post-Register about seeing a strange black cloud and roaring noise above the spill area before realizing it was a massive swarm of bees.

Authorities say a truck was hauling the bees to North Dakota from California when the driver veered off the shoulder, tipping more than 400 hive boxes and honey.

Crews worked all day Monday before removing all the honey from the roadway, though deputies say a significant amount of bees were still buzzing.

Watson waves bye to Harry Potter era

▶ Emma Watson is waving goodbye to her time on Harry Potter and saying hello to new opportunities

▶ Actress looking forward to new films, new schools and new changes

HEIDI PATALANO
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

From the age of nine, British actress Emma Watson has lived and breathed Harry Potter — having starred in all eight of the films as Potter's close friend, the bookish Muggle-born Hermione Granger. While Watson gave a tearful speech at the final film's premiere in London last week, as Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part Two gets released, the actress is also eagerly awaiting her post-Potter life — even if she and Hermione have basically already become the same person.

What was your last scene as Hermione?

The last shot we did was this strange moment where we dive into the fireplace in the Ministry of Magic. It was actually for part one, not part two and so Dan, Rupert and I one by one jumped onto these blue safety mats. It seemed like a strange scene to go out on but actually (director David Yates) made the point that we were leaping into the unknown.

It was kind of a perfect metaphor for what we were all about to go into. I can't tell you how I felt when we were shooting it. Were there any last moments from shooting that stick out in your mind?

This film was obviously incredibly challenging for me.

It really pushed me as an actress but at the same time, I was able to use a lot of my own genuine emotion that I felt about loss and it all coming to an end. So yeah, not much acting required, really. It was all there for me.

What's next for you?

It's obviously scary — change is always scary, but I feel like I'm entering a new chapter, like I get a fresh start, and there's something really exciting about that. I have just made a film called The Perks of Being a Wallflower which was just an incredible experience.

So are you going back to Brown?

I'm going to Oxford in the fall to study English for a year. I haven't left Brown. I'm still enrolled at Brown but I'm doing my third year abroad, studying at home, abroad for me. I'll go back to the States for my last year. I took a semester off but my A-level credits actually count as an advance placement.

The man behind the magic

David Yates has directed the last four Harry Potter films, and some of the best reviewed. Metro found out how he pulled it off.

At the end of shooting The Deathly Hallows did you feel relieved or did you feel like you could do four more films? I was really glad we'd finished, quite honestly. It's very tough making these movies. They're really complicated. The reason I think I lasted longer than anyone else is because I enjoyed the world very, very much. The people gave me a lot of energy — Dan, Rupert and Emma, the crew, my producers... And, I didn't want to be the director that did the two in the middle. There was something about that that made me feel really uncomfortable.

What kind of film would you like to direct next?

With something much smaller and meaner and leaner. It would be crazy to do another blockbuster for a bit, so I'm going to make not a little tiny film but a smaller film. I've got some great scripts. The great thing about directing Harry Potter is the Harry Potter as a story, it's a thriller, it's a comedy, it's a horror movie, it's an action picture. So as a director, I'm getting sent comedies, action movies, thrillers — everything that you could imagine.

FILM FRANCHISES AND THEIR PHENOMENON

IN FOCUS

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONWS.CA

In 2005 when the fourth installment of the Harry Potter films hit screens, I wrote, "The Harry Potter phenomenon is so powerful that you could have called this Harry Potter Drinks a Goblet of Water and presented an Andy Warhol-style film of young Harry chugging a glass of H2O for two hours and Potterheads would still wear their wizard hats and line up to see it."

Astonishingly, six years later, the same holds true for the final installment of the series, Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 2.

It's not uncommon for movie franchises to span years and hang on to loyal fans. But to have the seven films in the series so far gross an average $909,906,449 each is astounding.

That kind of number speaks as much to the ferocity of the Potterheads as it does to the quality of the movies.

The next highest grossing movie series is the James Bond franchise, which originated in 1962.

The super spy has shot and seduced his way through 22 official 007 releases for a worldwide box office total of $5,029,014,110.

Interestingly Harry Potter-player Daniel Radcliffe expressed interest in taking on the role of the teenaged

James Bond in a planned film based on the Young Bond series of books.

Perhaps he can bring some of his magic to the part and create another successful franchise.

The Potter films are unique in the sense that the cast has stayed unchanged. Radcliffe, Emma Watson and Rupert Grint were all magically transformed into multi-millionaires playing Harry, Hermione and Ron.

Their presence in the films has provided a sense of continuity from one film to the next, but it's not always necessary for actors to be yoked to characters in multiple sequels and spin-offs.

There have been six James Bonds and Batman – the highest grossing superhero series – and they've seen everyone from Michael Keaton to Christian Bale wear the crusader's cape.

Even though George Clooney's installment, Batman and Robin, was a critical and financial disaster — Clooney himself called the film "a waste of money" and volunteered to personally refund money to audience members — it didn't stop the franchise. Eight years later Batman was reinvented by Christopher Nolan as The Dark Knight, which grossed $1,001,842,429 at the box office.

Not sure if recasting and reimagining Harry Potter would work, but, who knows? Maybe 10 years from now Hollywood will have a Potter new cast and new stories for a new generation.

GLORIANA LEARNS OF BREAKUP ON TWITTER

The members of Gloriana found out like the rest of us that band mate Cheyenne Kimball was leaving the group: on Twitter.

Singer Tom Gossin told The Associated Press that Kimball took off after their show on Friday without a word and didn't respond to their emails. The next time they heard from her was a post on the group's Twitter page Saturday, saying she was leaving the band. The tweet has since been deleted.

"A band is a lot like a relationship," Gossin said. "Throughout the whole four years of this band there's always ups and downs. It wasn't particularly a down moment or anything like that. So, yeah, it was a big surprise."

Gloriana, formed in 2008, also includes Gossin's brother, Mike, and Rachel Reinert. They've been on tour this summer and are preparing to release their second studio album this fall. Gloriana won the Academy of Country Music's top new vocal group award last year. Their hits include Wild at Heart and How Far Do You Wanna Go.

Gossin said there were no obvious signs from Kimball leading up to her departure, which makes it all the more confusing for the rest of the band.

But ultimately, the band is determined to press on with their tour and new album.

► A military chapel, left, is illuminated during a night tour on Alcatraz Island in San Francisco. Alcatraz at night offers visitors an eerie adventure and different perspective on prison life.

Foggy Alcatraz by night

- Touring this former prison by night is 'kind of eerie with the fog and lights' says a visitor
- Off-limit areas including the dungeon and hospital are free to roam about when its dark

When night fell on The Rock in San Francisco Bay, visitors moved shadow-like through the former prison's lantern-lit hospital rooms, against dingy walls with peeling blue paint.

A hard wind whooshed and rattled a window in the hospital cell where Robert Stroud, The Birdman of Alcatraz, spent 11 of his 17 years at the dankest, hardest federal prison in the U.S.

Yet most of the more than one million tourists who visit the famous former prison annually never get to experience Alcatraz Island at night or see its spooky, decrepit hospital — experiences unique to the night tour.

At dusk the island prison that housed some of the nation's most notorious criminals — including Al Capone and the recently rearrested James (Whitey) Bulger, who was on The Rock for bank robbery from 1959 to 1963 — is often enshrouded by fog. Lamps on the grounds emit a ghostly glow.

The difference from the daytime tour is apparent. The ferry from San Francisco motors slowly around the isle, passing decrepit buildings surrounded by Alcatraz's new residents: black Brandt's cormorants, western gulls and the other birds at home there since U.S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy shuttered the prison in 1963.

"This is a little eerie," said Gerard Lang, 28, who was visiting from Covington, Ky. "You kind of feel like you're heading to prison yourself."

Visitors begin a winding ascent past the prison's official sign, where a faded "Indians Welcome" is still visible, remnants of the Native American occupation of the island from 1969 to 1971. The island became a national park in 1972.

Passing the guano- and rust-covered buildings that once housed the families of prison guards, the park's employees tell in gripping detail a failed Friday the 13th, 1939, escape attempt.

Once inside the prison, the audio tour features stories from ex-inmates and former prison guards in their own voices.

The tour leads visitors through D Block, or solitary confinement, where you can stand inside a dark cell and listen to the voices of inmates. You can sense the isolation, the desperation. On the ride back to shore, San Francisco's skyline glowed through the evening fog and many remarked on the unique evening spent on Alcatraz.

Royal faces on dollar bills

► Printers were ordered to 'tone down' the highlights when an image of the Queen's hair looked demon-like ► Portraits are currently on display

From Victoria to Elizabeth, the faces of royalty have appeared on Canadian government banknotes — and not always in the most flattering light.

Portraits of all those royals — others include Princess Patricia, Prince Arthur, Princess Mary and King George VI — are on display in Royal Generations, an exhibit at the Bank of Canada's Currency Museum honouring the visit to Canada by Prince William and Kate.

Having royalty on money "underlines the strength of the currency," says Paul Berry, the museum's chief curator.

In the 19th century, even the monarch's representative in Canada, the governor general, was often shown on the currency, along with his spouse.

In addition to engraved portraits, the exhibit includes samples of banknotes, such as a $25 bill from 1935 showing King George V beside Queen Mary.

As well, there is equipment used in the making of paper money, such as engraving tools and plates.

The engraving process goes back centuries and has changed "remarkably little" over the years, the museum says.

Also displayed is the original steel engraving of Elizabeth used for the notorious "devil's head" notes of the mid-1950s.

"After the notes had been out for about two years (in every denomination from $1 to $1,000), someone happened to notice that if you focused on the highlights of the Queen's hair directly above her left ear, it took on the appearance of a grinning demon with bulging eyes and a large crooked nose," said Berry.

The bank subsequently ordered its printers to "tone down" the highlights so the image could not be seen, he said.

There is no legal requirement to put the reigning monarch on banknotes, Berry said.

Designs are developed by the Bank of Canada and approved by the minister of finance. Former prime ministers Robert Borden, Wilfrid Laurier and Sir John A. Macdonald are among those on current notes.

Royal Generations is on display until Aug. 1.

The Currency Museum

is located in the Bank of Canada buildings in downtown Ottawa.

Admission is free.

Fresh peas mingle with mint

THE CANADIAN PRESS H/O/ WHITECAP

► This Summer Pea and Mint Salad is made in three simple steps.

► This salad from dietician Marilyn Smith's Healthy Starts Here! cookbook pairs well with warm weather

Farmers markets and grocery stores are starting to stock fresh peas. They're delicious eaten from the pod and they're also a great addition to summer salads (if you can make it home without snacking!).

Dietitian Marilyn Smith was looking for a way to incorporate peas in a salad. She had mint in her garden and celery in her fridge.

"I wondered if I throw all this stuff together and I make a tangy sauce what would happen and it turned out really well."

The Summer Pea and Mint Salad is included in her recent cookbook Healthy Starts Here!

Preparation:

1 Salad: In a large salad bowl, toss together peas, celery, parsley, mint and chives.

2 Dressing: In a small bowl, whisk together oil, orange juice concentrate, vinegar and Dijon.

3 Pour dressing over salad and toss well. Serve.

An intern's insight

STUDENT VOICE

EMILY MOORHOUSE
TALENTEGG.CA

During my three year Public Relations Advanced Diploma program at Humber College, we were required to complete a 15-week internship in order to graduate.

The process of finding an internship while in school was made easier as we had an online portal where employers could post opportunities that we could apply for.

I managed to get an internship at a start-up company and received an honorarium of $100 a month.

However, as the company was small, they didn't have the funding for me to

What I learned

Key take-aways from Emily's experience:

► Build a network of contacts by attending events and meeting new people. Bring along personal business cards to show others that you're prepared and serious about the job hunt.

► Internships are a great way to develop new skills and test different work environments. With one or two internships under your belt, you'll be more ready for the work world when you start searching for entry-level positions.

stay on as a full-time employee. While I was still interning, my supervisor was amazing at reaching out to her contacts to help me find a job.

I also utilized many online tools for my job search, including Twitter, job search engines and email. I emailed as many public relations agencies as I could, briefly explaining my experience and how I could fit in with their company.

During this process, I learned how important it is to customize your cover letter and objective to the specific place you are applying. It's also crucial to double and triple check for correct names and spelling.

In the end I saw a posting for a social media internship for an online global publication. I sent an email to the social media manager, which included a brief introduction of myself, my cover letter and my resumé.

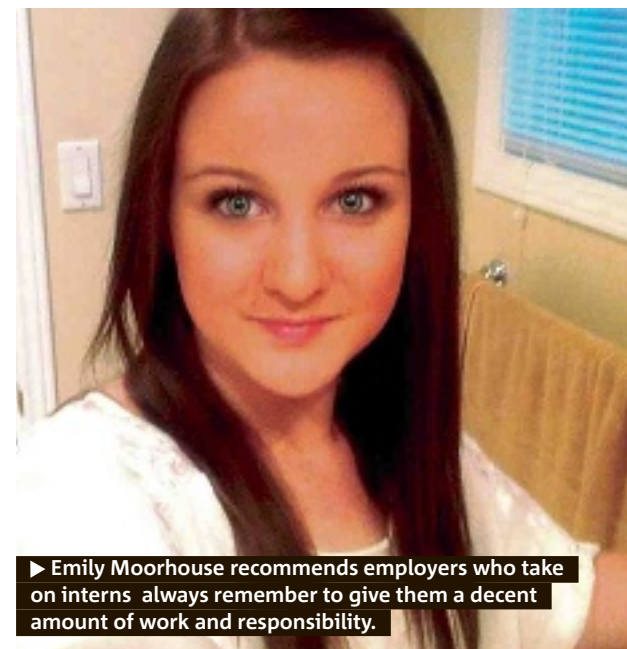

I then spoke with her on the phone, and was offered an interview at the Toronto office. Thankfully, I'm a people person and I don't get shy when it comes to talking about career related topics. After leaving the interview feeling confident, I was later offered the internship.

I think it's important to do at least one or two internships before searching for entry-level careers. Internships give you a chance to develop your skills and get a better understanding of the work environments that you enjoy (or don't enjoy!).

Another plus of internships is, depending on the impression you leave and the size of the company, you may be offered a job after your placement.

I think the greatest piece of advice I could give to students looking to land their own internships, would be to network and volunteer as much as you can while in ► Emily Moorhouse recommends employers who take on interns always remember to give them a decent amount of work and responsibility.

It's so important to build a network of contacts and connections. If you're willing to take time out of your busy schedule to do volunteer work, the people you are volunteering for may be inclined to provide a valuable reference for you down the road.

A great way to network is to attend events and really put yourself out there. Take along some personal business cards that include your Twitter handle or your LinkedIn URL (if you're active on those sites).

About to leave on a much-needed vacation, Lerae Bigelow thought she had made plans for just about everything. But when her boss demanded that she cancel her trip at the last minute, she realized there was one contingency she had overlooked — her own dismissal.

As a supervisor for the Alberta-based oilfields service company T.C. Mobile Vessels Ltd., Bigelow thought she had complied with the usual vacation protocol: She notified her boss that she was attending a family reunion at the end of August and spoke to him again one week before her trip to ensure everything was in order.

However, on the day of her departure, her boss called from out of town demanding that she change her plans and work that night. Bigelow explained that she had scheduled a vacation and it was too late to reschedule. Thinking he was entitled to issue the directive and that Bigelow would have to obey, her boss got upset when she refused to take the shift. He later called her demanding that she return her equipment to the company.

When she returned from vacation, Bigelow received a text message from her boss confirming that she had been dismissed...

Keep turning pages

► Encouraging kids to read books during the summer will keep them sharp

Summertime is so beautiful — filled with outdoor sports, full pink roses, warm afternoons and cool evenings. Just thinking about the summer months makes many school-aged children happy. You may remember having at least a few lazy days of summer during which you actually had the time to grab a book, relax, and read outside for a while.

The Johns Hopkins University Center for Summer Learning says that “all students experience significant learning losses in procedural and factual knowledge during the summer months”.

However, reading four or five books can actually enhance reading ability in an elementary school child, and instead of finishing the summer with a learning deficit, your child can finish the summer with gains, and go into the new school year with better reading and writing skills.

► Still have fond memories of reading your young summers away? Pass those feelings on to your kids.

How can you help your child this summer and prevent a learning loss? First, think about your own likes and dislikes.

If someone told you to read Crime and Punishment by Dostoevsky over the summer, unless you are an aficionado of Russian novels, you may just put it off. Your child is no different. If you like to read lighter books in the summer, your child may just have the same feeling.

Children should read what they like to read over the summer, because it is more likely that they will read more after having discovered the joy of reading.

Allow your child to experience the wonder of reading a fantasy or science fiction story, or the thrill of feeling as if he or she is at a revolutionary war battle — or on a pirate ship.

Some children may like non-fiction, even during the summer, and may want to read about the universe, science, or even about travels or foods in foreign lands. Like you, they just might turn into an adult with fond memories of reading outside during the summer.

With young preschoolers, make time during the summer for reading aloud. It's important to begin reading aloud to your child as soon as possible, because this helps to develop a sense for the rhythm and pattern of language.

Kumon Math and Reading Centres offer these tips for reading with preschoolers: NEWS CANADA

Commish weighs in on ballpark safety

Baseball Commissioner Bud Selig says major league teams are reviewing stadium safety following the death of a fan at a Texas Rangers game last week.

The fan, 39-year-old Shannon Stone, fell over a railing while trying to catch a ball thrown to the stands by Rangers outfielder Josh Hamilton.

"It was a horrible accident, heartbreaking, almost beyond comprehension," Selig said yesterday during a question-and-answer session with the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

"Each team determines its own ballpark safety features based on local laws.

"Maybe there's some things they can or can't do," Selig said. "Common sense should always take over in this situation."

The commissioner also said he had found more support than he had expected for a one-game playoff between wild-card teams if the playoffs expand from eight to 10 clubs in 2012.

Selig said that he was not interested in radical realignment that would eliminate divisions or make major alterations to the leagues, but it was possible one team could move from the NL to the AL to leave each league with 15 teams. Because the 2012 draft schedule already has been completed, that likely could not occur until 2013 at the earliest.

Rory McIlroy slipped into his seat without great fanfare yesterday, his presence detected by a sudden burst of camera shutters when the photographers realized the star of this British Open had arrived.

It was his first time at a news conference since that Sunday evening at Congressional, and it all looked familiar except that the 22-year-old from Northern Ireland no longer had the shiny U.S. Open trophy at his side.

McIlroy has a chance to join the elite group of players that have captured the U.S. Open and British Open in the same year.

McIlroy knew it was quite an achievement, setting scoring records at the U.S. Open and winning by eight shots.

"I didn't realize how much of a fuss it would create or how much of a buzz," he said. "It's been nice. I thought it was great for me to win the U.S. Open, win my first major. The support that I've had from people back home, from everyone all over the world, has been pretty overwhelming."

It was impossible to miss yesterday.

This is the new world of McIlroy. And he says he's ready for it.

"This is what I've always wanted to do," McIlroy said. "I've always wanted to be a successful golfer and be one of the best players in the world and to win major championships. If I have to put up with a few things along the way, then I'm fine with that."

McIlroy became the youngest major champion since Woods won his first major at Augusta National in 1997 when he was 21. The last four major champions are all in their 20s, the first time that has happened in more than a century.

The British Open gets underway tomorrow.

20-second drop top

The Camaro's well-insulated power-operated cloth top is secured by a single centre-mounted latch and takes just 20 seconds for the windows to automatically lower and the top to fully retract.

Chevy can also supply a windscreen that's secured between the seats to help keep most baby-boomer comb-overs in place.

Smooth ride

The firm-riding Camaro features 20-inch wheels that, when tested, clung tenaciously to the twisty tarmac. The optional leather-covered bucket seats provided equal grip and were pleasantly comfortable for long-distance driving.

You'll also be hard-pressed to see or feel any bizarre shaking or body flex that's problematic on some other convertible designs.

Mighty SS

The Camaro convertible SS model comes with a 426-horsepower 6.2-litre V8 and a six-speed manual transmission.

There's also a 312-horsepower 3.6-litre V6 unit that comes with the optional six-speed automatic. Still, its extra-cost black centre stripe and 20-inch polished aluminum wheels made it appear almost indistinguishable from the mighty SS.

► For all its size, the Camaro convertible doesn't hold much in the way of people or cargo. But that's not really the point of this style statement, now is it.

Cruising season is finally here; need a reminder?

MALCOLM GUNN
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA
WHEELBASE MEDIA

High-school reunions are great for reminiscing about the way we were. And the perfect four-wheeled time machine for such an event is the 2011 Camaro convertible.

The year I departed my alma mater in 1967 was the Camaro's freshman season. By then, Ford's groundbreaking Mustang had been around for two and a half years and had generated worldwide sales in excess of 1.3 million copies.

Even so, the Chevy rival attracted plenty of attention with its head-turning good looks and enough available grunt to lay down lengthy rubber strips whenever the driver tapped the gas pedal.

To my teenage way of thinking, the original Camaro's sophistication and swagger (especially the Rally Sport convertible model with its hidden headlights) blew the Mustang into the weeds and would have been my personal preference if only I had possessed the financial wherewithal.

Chevrolet mothballed the Camaro on its 35th anniversary in 2002, but with great fanfare the stunning coupe returned for the 2010 model year.

The convertible was released this past February, just in time for the spring and summer cruising season.

Whether it's around the block or across the country, the Camaro should definitely transport you to another state of mind.

► While the rear seats can easily fit children, they should be declared off limits for anyone taller than five feet.

► One of the Camaro's few shortcomings is a steering wheel that partially blocks the gauges, regardless of tilt position.

Camaro convertible

What you should know about the 2011 Chevrolet Camaro convertible:

- Types: Two-door, rear-wheel-drive convertible.
- Engine (hp): 3.6-litre DOHC V6 (312); 6.2-litre OHV V8 (400-426).
- Transmission: Six-speed manual; six-speed automatic (opt.).
- Market position: Primary target is the Ford Mustang. With V6 and V8 powerplants, this Chevy appeals to a "newstalgic" crowd on the basis of style and performance with decent fuel economy.
- Mileage: L/100 km (city/hwy): 12.4/7.1 (V6, MT).

By comparison

Ford Mustang

Base price: $32,900
Classic design with muscular V6 and V8 power. GT500 model sizzles.

Mitsubishi Eclipse

Low-volume ragtop has great looks, but I4 and optional V6 lack power.

Chrysler 200

Base price: $31,500
Restyled former Sebring is much improved. New V6 option adds punch.

LEASING AND THE DEATHLY HALLOWS, PART II

AUTO PILOT

MIKE GOETZ
DRIVE
@METRONEWS.CA

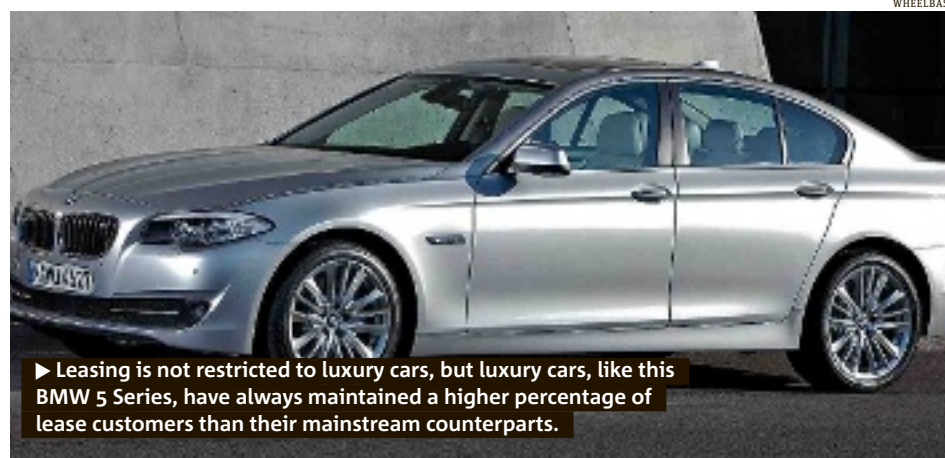

A few years back certain automakers were really big into leasing. Then they dropped it like a hot potato salad. Yes, very messy.

In an effort to get business by establishing lower and lower monthly lease payments, many automakers set way too optimistic lease-end residual prices.

These vehicles then flooded the used market and over-supply conditions further decreased their already unrealistic values.

Net result: automakers and lessors had to suck up the difference, and suffered huge losses in their leasing portfolios. Grumpy faces all around.

They're not going to do that again. Oh wait, they might be... Yes, Chrysler and GM are back into leasing. And other automakers that significantly scaled back their leasing efforts, like Ford, are now scaling back up.

► Leasing is not restricted to luxury cars, but luxury cars, like this BMW 5 Series, have always maintained a higher percentage of lease customers than their mainstream counterparts.

Well leasing is back, but you can be sure that automakers have learned valuable lessons. Leasing is different now.

Generally, automakers will now be more selective on which models they offer leasing programs on, and will have self-imposed limits on their overall leasing penetration. Ford, for instance, wants to keep it around 10 per cent of their overall sales.

Luxury makes have more pressure to lease — their affluent customers like to, and can afford to, get into new vehicles more often, and leasing is a great no-fuss no-muss way to get that done. If you're always driving a relatively new vehicle it's going to be expensive, no matter which financing method you use.

Which brings us back to an essential point of leasing — leasing is not for everyone. In the previous era, many customers were mesmerized by those lower-then-low monthly payments, and then found out the hard way, that it didn't suit their budget, needs or lifestyle. If they didn't look after the vehicle properly and/or drove it a ton, they got stung at lease end with excessive kilometre and "wear and tear" charges.

By adhering to more realistic residual (or end-of-lease) values, leasing offers are better structured than they were in the past, but lost the clear-cut cost advantage they previously held over their main competitor — a financed car loan. But automakers still use attractive lease rates to move certain models, so good leases deals are out there.

Do some reading before you go lease happy. The Canadian Automobile Dealers Association (CADA) has published a useful document called, Turning the Lights on Leasing, which is accessible on its website (cada.ca).

Another resource is the software application, Expert Lease Pro, available at leasetips.com.

I asked publisher, Charles Hart, what is the most misunderstood aspect of leasing, by consumers?

"That it's a legal contract," said Hart. "You're entering into a legal contract. Not just taking a loan and then purchasing something. Distinct difference... Like any contract, you need to read it and understand it, before you enter into it."

And once you're in, be prepared to go the distance.

Hart noted you could prematurely end a lease.

"But it's painful and expensive."

Lowly dandelion could be Ford's next breakthrough

DRIVING FORCE

JIL MCINTOSH
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

The next time you're cursing dandelions as you're digging them out of your lawn, try not to be so hard on them: they might be part of your car someday.

Ford has partnered with Ohio State University's agricultural research department to see if the milky sap in dandelion roots can be used in place of latex to make rubber for vehicle parts.

"I believe oil will become more scarce and we need to look at alternative materials that we can grow in this country," says Debbie Mielewski, technical leader of plastics research for Ford in Michigan.

"We use a lot of synthetic rubber and it's made from petroleum. Rubber is a natural product, but it's grown in Southeast Asia. Transportation costs are getting ridiculous, the plants are being hit by blight, and they're cutting down trees at a much higher rate than they're replacing them, so we don't think it's feasible long-term."

You're not going to get rich by weeding and selling the result. In order to get enough sap from each plant, the dandelions being studied are a special strain that's native to Russia.

"These roots are enormous compared to those in our regular dandelions here," Mielewski says.

"They were looking at it during World War Two as a local source of rubber because nothing was shipping in, but research stopped after the war ended. In the last few years, Ohio State started to look at it to see if we can grow it here as a natural source of rubber."

The dandelions are harvested, dried, and their roots snapped open to obtain the sap. In testing, it's being used the same way as natural latex to form rubber. Even if the weeds have potential, Mielewski warns that it will take years before the product actually comes to market.

Canada is available at participating dealerships to qualified retail customers on select new 2011 Chrysler, Jeep, Dodge and Ram models. Taxes on the full negotiated purchase price are payable at the beginning of the contract term resulting in higher payments than payments taxed on a periodic basis and are not reflected in advertised payments. The following terms apply to TD Financing Services contracts. (Different contract terms apply to Ally Credit Canada offers. See your retailer for complete details.) Vehicles are financed over a 36-, 48- or 60-month term with payments amortized over a term of up to 96 months and the pre-determined residual balance payable at the end of the contract. At contract's end, customers have the choice of returning their vehicle through a Chrysler, Jeep, Dodge, Ram dealership with no further obligations (except payment of a $199 return fee and excess wear and tear, mileage and similar charges), financing the remaining balance for the rest of the amortization period at then-current standard rates or paying the residual balance in full. GARRY SOWERBY
FOR WHEELBASE MEDIA
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

The target is 500 metres away. Half a kilometre.

Without a powerful scope, the pop can at which I'm aiming the rifle isn't even visible.

"Control your breathing, Garry. Slowly inhale. Gently exhale. Keep the cross-hairs on the pop can because there is a half stick of dynamite in it and a hit means a big boom reward."

My finger twitches on the trigger of the 15 kilogram 50-calibre weapon.

I worry about the recoil ripping my shoulder off. I wonder how my wife, Lisa Calvi, and I will make out when the scores are finally tabulated on Volvo's XC Adventure, a zany two-day road trip between Los Angeles, Calif., and Gateway, Col.

We were competing against 15 other teams driving Volvo XC models: 60s, 70s and 90s.

Our ride was a Caspian blue — that's a dark blue, by the way — XC70 with all the bells and whistles, including a 300-horsepower turbocharged engine.

When we strapped into it two days earlier in L.A., I couldn't help but think of the Volvo I've owned for 31 years. The weathered blue and white 1980 DL wagon in which Ken Langley and I circumnavigated the planet in record time so many years ago has always been nicknamed Red Cloud.

"Let's call this one Blue Cloud, Lisa." My suggestion seemed more reasonable than calling a blue and white car Red Cloud.

So for the next 48 hours it was Lisa, Blue Cloud and I against teams from the likes of Road & Track, Motor Trend and Car & Driver magazines. Along the way we would have to make choices and test our stamina, wit and curiosity to earn points like the competitors in the hit TV show The Amazing Race.

Our first instruction seemed simple enough: get to the Las Vegas sign on the Vegas Strip by 3 p.m. that afternoon and average 25 mpg. No sweat.

I feather-footed Blue Cloud through the mountains to the high desert and brought it in at 25.6 mpg. Not bad for an all-wheel-drive tall wagon with mobility to go just about anywhere.

Along the way we completed many other tasks, including photographing three sharks in Shark Reef at Mandalay Bay Resort, scrambling up a 13-metre vertical rock face at a climbing centre, delivering dog food to the Humane Society in St. George, Utah and touring a ghost town to name just a few.

On the last day, while organizers were scoring the challenge, we hit the shooting range to fire 308 Winchester rifles at pop cans loaded with dynamite. I connect on my first shot and graduate to the massive 50-cal for the 500-metre target.

Slowly I squeeze the trigger.

BOOM!

It sounds like an F18 fighter breaking the sound barrier overhead. No dynamite exploding though.

"You missed by four inches, closest so far." The spotter seems impressed with my shooting prowess.

No big deal though because that night at the awards dinner we hit the target with the high-miler prize.

Proper thing for a Volvo named Blue Cloud, refined relative of Red Cloud, a 30-year-old relic that broke the around-the-world speed record so long ago.

1 Just what everyone needs: a bed for a pickup bed. Available from California-based Pittman Products International, the patented AirBedz is available to fit most trucks on the road — and most bed lengths — and even includes cutouts to fit around the inner wheel housings. AirBedz would also work great for laying out in the sun on a warm day or for a tailgate party with friends. truckairbedz.com.

2 For small cars or for large families with bulky objects to transport, a rooftop carrier is a must. One of the more useful is the Skybox LoPro Titanium from Yakima Products Inc. The company offers dozens of carriers, but this 15-cubic-foot container features a low 28.5-centimetre height that cuts wind resistance (to aid fuel economy) and noise, while allowing your vehicle to fit inside most garages. yakima.com.

3 It used to be that only trained automotive technicians could determine the cause of that mysterious glowing "check-engine" light. But now you can diagnose just about any newer vehicle's system, determine the problem — and gather how much the repair should cost — with the CarMD. When plugged into the On Board Diagnostics port located just beneath the dashboard of your 1996 or newer vehicle, the tester's series of green, yellow and red lights will indicate if a problem exists. carmd.com.

Along with displaying current speed, horsepower, and elapsed times, the SS with GPS technology also records whatever elapsed-time intervals you want while your vehicle is in motion. # An upscale driving experience

► Volkswagen Tiguan loved for refinement, sportiness

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

The VW Tiguan is a compact SUV that was launched in 2009 to Canadian shoppers. Still on sale, the model receives an update for the 2011 model year.

With standard turbo power, two or all-wheel drive and sporty driving dynamics, the Volkswagen Tiguan stood out in the marketplace as a sporty and exciting contender.

Standard equipment included a two-litre four-cylinder turbo engine with 200 horsepower, front-wheel drive and a five-speed manual transmission. A six-speed automatic was available, and standard on 4Motion all wheel drive models.

► Model: 2009 to 2011 Volkswagen Tiguan
► Vehicle type: Crossover SUV

Feature content included heated leather seating, a sunroof, navigation, rain-sensing wipers, a backup camera, Bluetooth and automatic climate control.

What Owners Like

Tiguan owners typically rave about sporty ride and handling characteristics, impeccable fit and finish, classy styling, and a long list of bells and whistles.

Small car driving manners and manoeuvrability are also highly rated.

What Owners Dislike

Complaints of the Tiguan tend to be centred around minor interior rattles as the vehicle ages, as well as its requirement to run on premium gas.

Some owners wish for better gas mileage, and many complain of limited cargo space in the back.

Common Issues

Start a test-drive of the Tiguan with a full check of all interior electronics — including the power/heated seats, navigation system and all lights.

A few owners have reported having transmissions replaced under warranty, and others note a strange and intermittent “thump” as the vehicle comes to a stop in traffic.

Information on Tiguan transmission issues is scarce, but if the automatic gearbox in the unit you’re considering exhibits any unwelcomed behaviour, be sure to have it checked out.

Note that any sputtering or “lumpiness” in acceleration could be caused by a bad engine sensor or ignition coil packs, and that any check engine lights should be investigated by a trained VW mechanic.

Finally, check the floor carpeting, especially around the front footwells for signs of moisture, which could indicate a clogged or pinched-off sunroof drainage tube.

The Verdict

Tiguan will command a price premium for its purchase and operating costs, though most owners agree that the upscale driving experience and sporty performance more than compensate.

A road trip with the right kind of memories

After months of fighting snow and wind, Canadians are gearing up for summer road trips.

From a little kid tucked in the backseat heading to the cottage, to a group of friends loading up the car for a camping trip, almost every Canadian has an epic summer drive memory.

Unfortunately, many also have memories of their vehicle being broken down on the side of the road with no help in sight.

A little proactive maintenance is the first step for a worry-free trip. Schedule a full service check-up two weeks prior to hitting the road including a tune-up and fluid top-up. Chances are during the winter months, you or your mechanic added more antifreeze to your radiator's coolant mix to prevent it from freezing. In excessive amounts, antifreeze can actually reduce cooling efficiency, resulting in higher engine temperatures. Have your mechanic check the concentration and adjust or change the coolant if required.

Help your engine perform at its best by filling your tank with a high-quality gasoline.

"Gasoline primarily contains carbon and hydrogen molecules, and combustion can create a residue, called gunk, which is a build-up of carbon particles on critical engine parts," explains Ken Mitchell, an engineer from Shell Canada.

"This gunk has a porous surface that can negatively affect the performance of your vehicle. Some high-quality fuels ... clean and protect critical engine parts from the build-up of gunk while you drive."

Along with your personal packing list, you'll want to be equipped with a travel kit for your vehicle. Essentials include: a rechargeable flashlight, a blanket, non-perishable food and water, flares and a jumper cable for your battery, and the contact numbers for your insurance agency and your roadside service provider. For longer trips, it never hurts to have extra fluids in the trunk — just in case.

The last piece of the puzzle for any road trip is getting where you need to go.

Thanks to smartphones and Google maps, it's never been easier to plan your route and explore every nook and cranny of this great country, right down to where your next fill-up will be.

"There's nothing worse than rolling into a small town late at night when your fuel tank is on "E," and not knowing where to go," said Mitchell.

So no matter where your epic summer drive takes you — the Cabot Trail, the TransCanada through the Rockies or through waving wheat fields of the prairies — these tools can help make sure that summer of 2011 delivers a road trip with the right kind of memories.
